A Streetcar Full of Desire. Summer, Steamy, Sensual, Vibrant.

The freedom to wear jewelry against type, whatever colors, whatever lengths, whatever shapes, with whatever clothes. Accentuating fun, and life, and play, and sport. In grand open spaces. And wispy mountains. And surfing shores. And sidewalk cafes. And nightclubs that pulse as rhythmically and loudly as they can to chase away the summer's heat. Or stay in tune with it. Summer. Full of inspirations.

JEWELRY DESIGN CAMP

Camp Director, Warren Feld
www.warrenfeldjewelry.com

tentatively July 2013
(Specific dates to be announced)

Immerse yourself into a week-long study of jewelry design theories, and their applications and manipulations with various materials, techniques and strategies.

Jewelry Design Camp has two back-to-back, 1-week sessions. Participants are invited to attend either session, or both. The focus is on designing jewelry, primarily using bead weaving techniques, but also incorporating techniques from bead stringing and wire working, as well. For beginners, intermediate and advanced students alike. Each session provides a separate series of projects, based on technical skill levels.

Held at Be Dazzled Beads, Nashville, Tennessee.

Session 1: Contemporizing Etruscan Jewelry (1 week)

How do you keep beadwork and jewelry design essential and alive? Learning ideas and techniques towards this end is the crux of this week-long series of workshops.

These workshops are for both Beginner as well as Intermediate level beaders or jewelry

Watch this video of these 200 year old Singing Bird Pistols. They recently sold for over $5 million at auction.

JEWELERS' WERK GALLERY IN DC

I am always on the lookout for galleries that sell and promote hand crafted art jewelry. Not that easy to find, when you are not in one of the few more enlightened communities in the United States. Most art galleries in Nashville, for example, shy away from jewelry. They either view it as craft, not art. Or not particularly relevant to arts in general.

One gallery in the Georgetown section of Washington, DC is known the world over for innovative contemporary jewelry by international artists.

THE ARTIST AS JEWELER

Originally, I was a painter. I didn't begin making jewelry until I was in my late 30's. When I began, I tried to make every necklace, bracelet and pair of earrings, as if these were to be painted. Never worked. These things have to be engineered. Hopefully you end up with something both beautiful and functional. Today, I see jewelry as "art", but something somewhat different than painting or sculpture. But occasionally the urge to paint jewelry arises. There is makers alike.

We will be examining traditional Etruscan jewelry, and how we can understand it from the vantage point of good jewelry design principles. We will learn and practice some basic techniques of bead stringing and bead weaving. Then we will do some thinking, planning and experimenting with these and other bead stringing and bead weaving techniques in order to create contemporary interpretations of two or three Etruscan pieces of jewelry to see what we can achieve.

You will learn to look at jewelry with a different eye. Many people create jewelry all their lives, without understanding why certain pieces draw your attention, and others do not. In this class, we will begin to answer that question: Why?

You will learn the correct way to string beads on cable wire, and crimp the wire to secure it to the clasp. You will learn the optimum way to string beads on thread, including how to tie a special knot. You will learn a few simple bead weaving techniques and how best to hold your pieces while you work it, and how to manage thread tension while weaving beads. You will learn to make simple, as well as coiled, loops on head and eye pins.

During the week, we will gradually develop an understanding of good jewelry design concepts. You will use these concepts to get a design-understanding of Etruscan jewelry. And you will use these concepts to begin to think about, plan and experiment with ideas for contemporizing Etruscan jewelry.

You will learn how to understand what "quality" means, when selecting and using glass, gemstone and metal beads and other jewelry clasps and findings. You will learn how to make choices among the many options of stringing materials. You will learn a little bit about buying tools. You will learn how color theories may be applied when using beads, rather than paints. You will learn to re-define a piece of jewelry in terms of its essential design elements – things you can manipulate within the piece. And finally, you will review 10 principles of jewelry design composition – that is, 10 rules for how to manipulate the elements within your piece.

We will be doing a lot of hands-on activity. Some of it will involve playing with and arranging beads on a bead board. And some of it will involve using bead stringing and bead weaving techniques to make bracelets or components which you can later finish off as bracelets or necklaces.

Session 2: Fringe, Edge, Strap, Bail, Surface Embellishment in Jewelry -- Art or Not? (1 week)

If we are to get control over what we make as artists, how do these jewelry elements -- fringe, edge, strap, bail, surface embellishment -- come into play in an appropriate and satisfying way?

Learn theories, multiple bead-weaving techniques, applications, for fringes, edges, straps, bails and surface embellishment.

Classical art theory would say that these kinds of elements in jewelry should be supplemental to the core piece, such as a pendant or centerpiece.

going to be an exhibit at the Museum of Arts & Design in New York City on Artists as Jewelers. The exhibit, to run from 9/20/11 thru 1/8/12, will be entitled "Picasso to Koons: Artist as Jewelry." Whether they were as successful as jeweler's as they were painters or sculptors, well that's something for you to decide. All I know is that it is difficult to transition from one to the other.

A NOVEL WAY TO FUND CREATIVITY

I had recently read an article about Kristy Lin, a jewelry artist who was attempting to launch a new jewelry line, and was searching for money. She turned to a website called Kickstarter.com to get some assistance in creating a fund-raising campaign. Now-a-days, you need to be very creative to get your creative endeavors off to a start.

JEWELRY APPRAISALS

Homeowners insurance rarely covers the full value of jewelry, in the event of loss or theft. Homeowners insurance rarely covers the full value of jewelry, in the event of loss or theft.

AMERICAN GYPSY JEWELRY

The pendant is "art", and any fringe, strap, bail, edging or extraneous surface embellishment would merely supplement this. In painting, these kinds of components would equate with the "frame"; in sculpture, these kinds of components would equate with the "pedestal base."

Neither the frame nor the pedestal should be required to be present in order to appreciate the painting or sculpture as art. Nor should these detract. Or compete. Or take center stage. Or overwhelm.

But what about these elements in jewelry -- fringe, edge, straps, bails and surface embellishment? If our goal is to elevate beadwork and jewelry to the realm of art, rather than craft, we need somehow to accommodate, confront or revise this central concept in art theory -- that all these elements must remain supplemental to the centerpiece.

In this workshop, we learn how to make the kinds of choices about fringe, edge, strap, bail, and surface embellishment which elevate our jewelry to the requirements and expectations underlying good art and design.

We will discuss theoretical and application ideas about these jewelry elements/components, as put forth by academics and critics in Craft, in Art, and in Design.

This workshop is an intermediate/advanced level. Some previous experience with making jewelry (whether bead stringing, bead weaving or wire working) is required. A knowledge of how to do flat peyote and tubular peyote bead weaving stitches would be very helpful.

You will be making a BezelWorks Pendant, including fringe, edge, strap, bail, and surface embellishment.

You will also be working through ideas by experimenting on what I call a Fringe-Edge-Strap Necklace.

The Antiques Road Show has a fascinating article about American Gypsy Jewelry on their blog. Gypsy Jewelry dates from the 1900-1930's period. During this time, many gypsies migrated to America and brought their jewelry-making skills with them.

CERAMICS AND CLAY ALL GROWN UP AS JEWELRY MEDIUM

There have been some prominent exhibits and collections around the country highlighting the work of ceramics artists in jewelry. Some of it is high-fired clay, some raku, some polymer clay and some metal clay. It's always very exciting to see how artists can achieve good jewelry design goals with new materials or new applications of materials.

TO BE, OR NOT TO BE?

To be a Jewelry Artist, or not to be?

What should I do? Will I succeed? How will I succeed? I'm afraid to change careers. I'm afraid no one will like my stuff. I'm too shy to get stores to sell my stuff. I haven't learned everything I need to learn. I don't make necklaces as well as so-and-so. I don't have enough money to start a business. I don't know how to start a business. I need to take more classes. There are four more books I want to read and work through before I get started. I don't have the supplies people want.

ANY LESSONS TO LEARN FROM NAIL POLISH TRENDS

I read this article recently in the NYT, how women are using many more colors of nail polish than the traditional reds and pinks, and that the use of the full color palette of nail polish colors is getting very institutionalized and accepted.

The writer offers a point of view here for discussion. Her main point, is that in an era of a weak economy, Chanel nail polish offers at a much lower cost the same cache as purchasing the more expensive Chanel perfume or clothing. People still want status and the qualities associated with it. They can not afford the top of the line items they used to.

PAPAL JEWELRY

HIS AND HER JEWELRY

Today, I decided to travel again on the Google Highway, and explore what came up when I typed in "His and Her Jewelry".

I'm not a "match-y" kind of person. If I were coupled, I don't think I'd wear matching jewelry with my partner.

I'm not androgynous. I don't like to wear very feminine jewelry myself, although I make a lot of jewelry for women that have "male" elements and sensibilities.

I've never designed jewelry for a couple or two partnered people. But I've had a lot of customers in the shop who came in looking for jewelry they could both wear, and somehow coordinated or matched.

BEAD WEAVING

STITCH OF THE MONTH

Learn a new bracelet stitch each month!

Instructor: Kathleen Lynam

Meets one Sat morning each month, usually the first Saturday.

The Stitch of the Month curriculum is designed to teach 12 major bead-weaving stitches/techniques in a comparative context. This is perhaps one of the best ways to learn bead weaving. You get a clearer understanding of what each stitch is, how to manage and control it, and what your project and design options are, when you learn them comparatively, rather than in isolation from each other.

Each class is devoted to explaining a little of the history of the stitch and the how-to basics of doing the stitch. Students then practice with variations on the stitch, such as increasing/decreasing, flat vs. tubular vs. circular, and the like.

Students create a bracelet each month.

Students may join the class at any point in the 12-month cycle. Each class is really in-and-of-itself. You may do all of the classes, or only some of them, as you desire. If you miss a class, it will be repeated in the next cycle.
